FRANKS OF A PET SPIDER.

Nightly Visits of a Soberable Insect—His Escape from a Dangerous Bathing. We named him Belshazzar on the occasion of his first visit to us, though I have forgotten what suggested the name. He was a big black spider with a shiny, fat body, suggestive of an abundance of flies, but for all this appreciation of the good things of life he was of a scholarly turn of mind. We were all seated around the study table, preparing the next day's lessons and tasks, when Minnie gave a scream that made me jump, and even the boys looked up startled. There was a big black spider calmly seated on a Latin dictionary regarding us intently. I flipped a paper at him, but he only drew in his legs with a slightly contemptuous air and did not stir. "Let him alone, sister," said Tom. "I've been studying about spiders, and here is a good opportunity for observing their habits."

As if encouraged by this championship, Belshazzar descended from the dictionary and crawled slowly over the open page of algebra, as if trying to make out what it was. From this he went over to the books, inspecting them all with the same critical air, and at last settled on a physical geography as most worthy of his attention. Every now and then he would refresh himself with a drink out of Aleck's ink bottle.

All at once we missed him, and as he had last been seen drinking from the edge of the bottle suspicion immediately arose that he had fallen in. He had, and was found floating helplessly about in the black scrap of waste paper, with injunctions to remain there until dry, but this he had no intention of doing. On the contrary, he showed a fixed determination to walk over Tom's neatly written Latin exercise.

"You shan't," said Tom, gently holding him with the feathered end of a quill pen on his scrap of paper. And then, for the next few minutes, we forgot all about him, till Tom's cry of dismay called attention to his exercise. It was lined and re-lined and lined again with Belshazzar's tracks. He had crawled all over the exercise, and was even looking very complacent over his nice black tracings when our exclamations of sorrow and anger seemed to arouse him to a sense of shame, and he scrambled down the table and was gone in the twinkling of an eye.

We thought we had seen the last of him, but the next night he came again and the next, until we looked for him as a regular visitor, and placed the physical geography open for him, for his fancy for it seemed to last. The accident of his fall into the ink bottle was repeated several times, for he would drink the ink, and once or some minutes, we feared that he was drowned, but he gradually revived, and beyond appearing rather subdued was little the worse for the adventure.

But whenever he had been in the ink after that first night nothing could induce him to stir off the paper on which he was placed to dry, though he would run over that and seemed to take pride in the designs with which he ornamented it. What became of our queer pet we never knew, but one night he failed to make his appearance, and we were surprised to find how much we missed him. We hoped, however, that he would come the next evening, but he never did, and somehow the study hour after that seemed longer and duller, and not to be looked forward to.—Philadelphia Times.

Mexican Hotels.

Before I came to Mexico I was told that I would find nothing good to eat in the country. Every one said that the hotels were horrible; that everything Mexican was a mixture of red pepper and grease; that the only good hotels in the country were those kept by Americans. I ventured into the land with fear and trembling, and at first patronized the American hotels. I found them dear and nasty. The cooking was abominable and the service was worse. I then tried a Mexican hotel and found it excellent. Some of the best meals I have ever had I have eaten in Mexico, and I shall not soon forget a dinner at Toluca, where a Mexican boy gave me dinner of ten courses, and where the cuisine was equal to that of a good Paris restaurant. Throughout southern Mexico I found splendid hotels. The Mexicans serve their meals one dish at a time in table d'hôte style. Mexican trifles, pronounced "free-holes," always form a part of the meal. They are Mexican black beans and are superior to the Boston baked beans and every one eats them. They are never eaten on the day they are cooked and they are always served in great abundance. They close the meal as rice closes a dinner in Japan.—Frank Carpenter in New York World.

A Minister's Reception

A Methodist minister, now stationed here, while relating some reminiscences of his early days in the ministry, said: "One day while traveling between stations I so timed myself as to arrive at a good brother's in the country about dinner time. I hitched my horse and went in. Brother H. was absent from home, and the wife and daughters appeared glad to see me. We chatted pleasantly for a half hour or more. I was very hungry, and was sure dinner was being prepared, as the girls had dropped out of the room one by one, so I tarried, but was very uneasy, and thought the lady of the house was becoming so. Finally she excused herself and went out of the room for a moment. A small boy, who had been running in and out of the room since my arrival, entered, and I said: "'Come here, my little man, and as he came toward me, I asked: "'How soon will you have dinner here?' "'Just as soon as you go,' was the ready answer. "I went."—Washington Star.

Our Daughters.

The household blessed with noble daughters ought to be a happy one. Roskin says that most parents forget, however, to imbue them with a love of nature which is so invigorating and healthful. "Give them," says he, "not only noble teachings, but noble teachers, and give them the help which alone has sometimes done more than all other influences—the help of wild and fair nature. You cannot baptize them rightly in inch deep church fonts unless you baptize them also in the sweet waters which the great Law Giver strikes forth from the rocks of your native land. You cannot lead them faithfully to those narrow, as hewn church altars while the azure altars in heaven remain, for you, without inscription; altars built, not to, but by an unknown God."

Dogs and Their Affections.

It has often been mooted as a vexed question why all men of genius or greatness are so fond of dogs. The reason is not far to seek. Those who are great or eminent in any way find the world full of parasites, loafers, liars, flatterers, hypocrites, the insupportable crowd, the selfish and the unscrupulous. For your dog you are never poor, for your dog you are never old, whether you are in a palace or a cottage he does not care, and fall you as low as you may you are his providence and his idol. —Quoted in North American Review.

Fuley Ross earnestly invites your attention to his magnificent showing of new and stylish furniture, carpets, etc. Your own interests cannot be better served than by familiarizing yourself with these goods and prices, because they represent standard grades and bottom prices. I bought my stocks with one particular aim and object always in view; there must be none better, and there must be none sold cheaper. I have made it a fixed fact that there will be no better goods offered you anywhere, simply because I have in stock the best that are made. I have made it an absolute certainty that no better prices shall be offered you anywhere. In view of these facts it is certainly apparent that Ross's Great Furniture and Carpet Emporium is a perfectly safe place to trade. That is worth a great deal to a buyer, this knowledge of perfect safety in securing full value for each and every dollar. I am determined to make it a profitable place to buy goods, and to do better by you than anybody.

KANSAS FARMS

For Sale by

KANSAS HOMESEEKERS' BUREAU.

We have choice farms in every part of the state for cash or on easy terms. Remember that no matter what wild reports you may have heard, that the government reports for seven years show that the cultivated lands of Kansas have produced more than the same number of cultivated acres anywhere else in the United States. Kansas soil, farmers produce more of this and then come and see it. Now is the time to buy before the land is gone. If we cannot show you more of the gifts of Providence in the fruits of the earth in the same length of time than you ever saw before, we will pay your expenses out here and give you a season's crop of the finest peaches you ever looked at. If you want to see the world's fair come to Kansas. Of course the great land men and fair farmers of Kansas are not mean enough to say we say and will do it. Write or visit us. If you mean swap or some other nonsense write us. If you mean business write us. We can get you a cheap rate and something else if you buy of us.

Look out for the excursion. Address HOMESEEKERS' BUREAU, 125 N. Main St., Wichita, Kansas.

THOS. SHAW.

Twelve competitors have opened up and quit business in the seven years I have been here. Why? Because they could not stand my prices. I can and do undersell anybody in the west. I ship goods to Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Colorado, Oklahoma and Texas. Traveling companies say they can do better here than at any place between Chicago and San Francisco. You cannot ask for anything in the music line that I cannot furnish. I carry almost everything in stock. I shall keep up my special sale on Pianos and Organs for a few days longer. I have something special in Church Organs.

If you want a Piano, Organ, Violin, Guitar, Banjo, Mandolin, Accordion, Band Instruments, Music Cabinets, Sewing Machines—Domestic, White, Standard, Wheeler and Wilson. I have them, and cheaper than you ever saw them.

All kinds of repairing neatly done and warranted.

THOS. SHAW,

THE - MUSIC - MAN.
